4/1/2011-12/31/2017

National Institute of Child Health and Human Development.

Housing services for child welfare families: Impact on stability and well-being

This study takes advantage of a natural experiment to evaluate the effectiveness of a housing intervention for families under investigation by the child welfare system, as well as to understand the mechanisms and conditions through which the program most benefits child development.

Role: Principal Investigator

90CA1815-01-00 Fowler (PI)

9/30/2014-9/29/2017

Administration for Children and Families – Children’s Bureau

Housing Services in Child Welfare: Economic Evaluation of Systems Coordination

This study uses an experiment in the child welfare system to test the costs and cost effectiveness of an intervention for inadequately housed families under investigation for child maltreatment. The project simultaneously aims to inform evidence-based services for homeless families involved in the child welfare system, while using innovative systems science approaches to investigate complexities involved in the implementation of coordinated housing and child welfare services.

HHS-2015-ACF-OFA-FK-0993 Kohl (Co-I)

9/30/2015-9/29/2020

Administration for Children and Families

Fathers’ Support Center’s Family Formation Program

The randomized controlled trial tests the implementation and impact of a comprehensive father support program on family functioning, father and child outcomes, and father economic stability and mobility compared to fathers receiving the economic stability services only.

Cross Systems Collaboration in Context

The study investigates facilitators and barriers to interagency collaborations designed to deliver evidence-based services. The pilot leverages innovative methodologies to 1) identify contextual factors involved in the development of cross-system collaborations, and to 2) inform planning and evaluation of interagency service coordination necessary for scale-up of evidence-based services.

National Institute of Child Health and Human Development.

Housing services for child welfare-involved families: Impact on safety, permanency and well-being

This study proposes to conduct secondary analyses of the National Survey of Children and Adolescent Well-Being (NSCAW) to inform service provision for families in contact with child welfare services primarily due to the inability to secure safe and affordable housing

Role: Principal Investigator

Brown School Evaluation Center Mueller (Co-I) 1/1/2016-5/31/2016

Washington University in St. Louis

Better Family Life– Program Planning and Evaluation

Better Family Life, Inc. provides neighborhood-based services and programs that aim to build strong families and communities. Agency leadership and staff engage in a collaborative evaluation of program theory and service delivery plans.

Vincentian Endowment Fund Grant, Fowler (PI) 12/1/2011-11/30/2012

Family Homelessness: Informing Policy and Practice

This award supplements an NIH funded project to collect data on multiple children with families experiencing homelessness in contact with the child welfare system.

DePaul University Research Council Competitive Grant, Fowler (PI) 6/1/2011-12/1/2012

Housing instability: A meta-analysis of the effects on family functioning and child development

Meta-analytic techniques will be used to estimate the effects of housing instability on family functioning and child mental health and academic outcomes across multiple empirical studies.

Role: Principal Investigator

DePaul University Research Council Competitive Grant, Fowler (PI) 7/1/2010-1/31/2012

Housing services for child welfare families: Impact on stability and development

This pilot study will evaluate the feasibility of interviewing child welfare-involved families.

Role: Principal Investigator

R01AA010597 Toro (PI) 7/1/1997-3/1/2008

Alcohol and homeless youth: A longitudinal comparison

The study compared developmental trajectories of homeless and low-income housed youths from early adolescents into the transition to adulthood. Measures assessed longitudinally family functioning, service utilization, alcohol and drug use/abuse, delinquency, academic achievement, mental and physical health and HIV-risk behaviors.

Role: Research Assistant (2003-2008)

Wayne State University Graduate School, Fowler (PI) 1/2008-6/2008

Detroit aging-out study

This grant covers expenses associated with purchasing statistical software to conduct dissertation analyses on a project that examined the longitudinal trajectories of youth aging-out of foster care.

Role: Principal Investigator

Student Research Grant, Fowler (PI) 1/2005-12/2005

Society for Community Research and Action/APA Division 27

Outcomes of youth who have aged-out of foster care

The study conducts a needs assessment of youth aging out of foster care. A representative sample of youth will be phone interviewed three years after exit from the system to evaluate mental health, substance abuse, risky sexual behavior, and daily functioning.

Role: Principal Investigator

Wayne State University Research Enhancement Program, Lewandowski (PI) 2004-2006

Patrick J. Fowler, Ph.D.

Differential effects of cumulative trauma and violence exposure on two adolescent populations

Examines the impact of cumulative trauma exposure on adolescents' self-report of minor, major, recurrent and long term health disorders; access to health care; and health behaviors among 175 urban African American and 196 Iraqi refugee adolescents.

Role: Data Analyst (2006-2007)
